

A Proclamation of National Flossing Day 2013

Whereas,

This Nation will once again have spent a full day focused on food, on Thanksgiving Day, November 28,

And since it is good for each of us to floss after meals,

Therefore,

It is befitting and proper that the following day,
November 29, 2013
be celebrated as

National Flossing Day.

During that day each and every person is encouraged to consider the role flossing has played in his or her life during the previous year, and to celebrate flossing so they can Help Spread "Peace of Mouth" in their own lives and the lives of others around them, in ways with and without floss.

All citizens are encouraged to search for ways to experience the JOY OF FLOSSING and thereby move beyond negative reasons to floss.

On this special day, our children should also be made aware of the richness and health that flossing can bring to life. Especially at this time when dental care is becoming available to nearly 9 million needy kids!

Be this day so proclaimed in the name of all the Volunteers who have devoted time to the work of the National Flossing Council and to Help Spread "Peace of Mouth!"

Armand Lione
President
National Flossing Council
Washington, DC/www.flossing.org