Forex A.I.R., a robot that works with a highly sophisticated automated trading algorithm, and one that uses what is known as Neural Network technology, has caught the attention of ForexVestor.com's Stan Stevenson, prompting an investigative review.

"Our Forex A.I.R. review shows that this program that's taken 10 years to create and undergo testing can monitor the currency markets around the world each and every trading day. The program takes each trading pair and plugs them into 2 separate neural networks, which in turn feed into a news filter, combining them all onto the MT4 platform," reports Stevenson. "Neural networking combined with trading algorithms allows the program to follow, adapt, and make trading changes along with the market conditions. Therefore, Forex A.I.R. automatically optimizes trading activity with the very best settings."

Forex A.I.R. works using a new filtering system that works in real time, thereby reducing the risk of loss. It uses the 4 low correlated currencies: EUR:USD, USD:CAD, USD:CHF, and AUD:USD as well as a variety of signals from both standard and non-standard indicators on the MT4 platform. The program is based on 2 separate strategies, which work together, and in fact hedge each other to receive higher profits and avoid big drawdowns. It trades during 3 trading sessions: European, Asian, and US, which means users can automatically trade Forex 24/7, even while they sleep.

"The Forex A.I.R. trading system not only includes the robot, but also all the support and education you need to truly understand what you're doing, no matter what your level of experience. Even though the recommended starting amount is $1000 for the quickest and largest results, you can get started with as little as $250 dollars," says Stevenson. "Once you've set up the robot, you honestly don't need to do anything else. Forex A.I.R. takes away all those time consuming chores such as checking charts each day. This program truly does bring your trading risk down to the absolute minimum because it trades using stop losses, and you get to choose exactly how much you're prepared to risk on each and every trade."

"Designed and coded by a group that includes programmers, Forex traders, and some highly skilled mathematicians, Forex A.I.R. truly does what it promises. One of the best things about it is that it truly is fully automated, which means anyone can start trading Forex in the shortest possible timespan. This program might've been written for you personally. Forex A.I.R. really is the best robot we've come across for reducing the risk as low as humanly (or robotically) possible. This plug and play system works as well for the complete rookie as it does for the experienced trader."
