Vapor Clean Announce Cleaning Franchise Opportunities Now Available

A business started in the middle of the double dip recession has announced it is giving other hard working individuals the chance to operate their very own virtually recession proof business. Co-founder & managing director Lee Keet has announced that following the quick and growing success of Vapor Clean Ltd he and his father have decided that now is the right time to not only move the company forward but to give ambitious individuals their chance to grow a successful business and provide a fulfilling welcomed service to their community. Starting in the UK Vapor Clean will be selecting individuals that meet the correct criteria to become franchisees, they say that providing these opportunities will allow the chosen individuals to become experts in cleaning and provide a service that is received with excitement and relief.

Vapor Clean Ltd was started by Lee Keet and his father in the middle of the so called 'Great Recession' from day one people asked "is that a franchise?" well the day has come! Father and son team have decided the time is right, their processes are refined enough to roll out Vapor Clean across the UK. Lee Keet Co-founder and managing director said "we just feel that now is the right time, thankfully things are looking up with the economy, but people are still struggling to know what to do with their professional lives and a Vapor Clean franchise would be so rewarding, I enjoy every day running my business, when customers tell me that they have tried other cleaners but have never known such a professional service or standard that they did with us and I think why not share how to achieve this with the right people and let them spread a great service"

Vapor Clean have spent the last 12months putting together a full franchise package, with things such as equipment, software and full training to ensure franchisees are fully equipped and supported providing them with a 'Business in a Box' so they can provide their customers great professional clean results every time.
