

Twin Cities Median Rents

The fourth quarter of 2012 showed the continuation of a strong rent growth in the Twin Cities apartment and shadow markets. One bedroom units in the apartment market were up 10% from the previous year, with a median rent of $790. Two bedrooms rose 8% to $960, and three bedrooms climbed 5% to $1,250. In the shadow market one bedroom units rose 3% to $835, two bedrooms grew 5% to $1,100, and three bedrooms nudged 1% higher to $1,300.

In the past two quarters in this report, we have started to see an interesting development with three bedroom apartments in the suburbs. In a number of cases rents are declining year-over-year (many times by 10% or more!) when the median rent for a three bedroom apartment a year ago was higher than a three bedroom shadow market rental in the same region. Examples of this trend in this quarters report are Blaine, Edina, Inver Grove Heights/Mendota/Lilydale, New Hope, and Woodbury. Last quarter it happened in Eagan, Eden Prairie, Edina, Hopkins, Inver Grove Heights/Mendota/Lilydale, Lakeville, Maplewood, Minnetonka, Wayzata/Mound, and Woodbury. The result of the declining apartment rents are that in most cases the rents are “corrected” to the place where three bedroom apartments are less than three bedroom shadow market units.

Check our Twin Cities Rental Revue blog for further analysis on three bedroom apartment rents in the suburbs and possible opportunities for apartment owners and managers.

Openings/Rents

Data on median rents in the Twin Cities are based on actual market rate listings on HousingLink.org, in addition to listings from other private market sources.

For metro-, county-, and city-level data, a listing is required to have a city identifier, a bedroom size, and a housing market type (e.g. apartment, duplex, townhome, etc.). For neighborhood-level data, a listing is required to have address-level detail that allows us to properly identify its neighborhood. For that reason, the sum total of Minneapolis and St. Paul neighborhood openings do not match the sum total of their respective parent cities.

Demand Index

Searches are based upon two methods of searching for rental vacancies on HousingLink.org:

1) Name search: Renters may choose to see all listings in a specific city or county (or multiple cities and/or counties) from a list of all metro area cities and counties containing current openings.

2) Map search: Renters may choose to search for openings via a map application. A region is considered to have a search if a user has zoomed into a rectangular area of approximately 14 miles by 10 miles and any portion of that region intersects the map.

Application Fee/Security Deposit/Utilities Residents Pay/Pet Policy

Because detail on the above metrics are not provided for all listings, this data is based upon a subset of the actual median rent database of listings.

Minneapolis Neighborhoods
