

Infinity Rehab Brings Healthcare Experts to Portland to Discuss the Future of Post-Acute Care and the Impact of Healthcare Changes on Communities and Clinicians

Infinity Rehab – a leading provider of post-acute contract therapy – celebrates its 9th annual Continuing Education Symposium on March 15th through the 16th at the Red Lion –Jantzen Beach. The continuing education event for practicing therapists will feature a panel of healthcare experts discussing local and national healthcare changes.

Portland, OR – Cover Oregon, Medicaid expansion, access to healthcare, and the Affordable Care Act have dominated headlines for the past year. Infinity Rehab aims to make sense of these issues by hosting a panel of healthcare experts at its 2014 Continuing Education Symposium. The three member panel will discuss the future of post-acute care, the impact legislative changes hold for therapists and consumers, and a bevy of other topics.

“A lot of changes are happening to the American healthcare landscape that have a tremendous bearing on our specific niche in the industry – from the Affordable Care Act to the rollout of ACOs and bundled payment systems,” says Mike Billings, PT, MS, CEEAA and President of Infinity Rehab. “To help our clinicians better understand how these changes directly impact them and the people they serve, we’re bringing in subject matter experts to explain the nuances.”

Infinity Rehab Physical, Occupational, and Speech therapists play an important role in helping older adults regain or maintain independence after suffering from an illness or injury. Increasingly, therapists practicing in post-acute treatment are central to the ongoing initiatives to reduce overall national spending on healthcare and reduce unnecessary re-hospitalizations.

Panel Speakers:

Justin Moore, PT, DPT is the Vice President of APTA Public Policy, Practice & Professional Affairs. He has served as a leading lobbyist on Capitol Hill for APTA. Dr. Moore has written, presented, and lectured on health policy, payment, and government affairs issues across the country.

Cynthia Morton is a nationally recognized lobbyist for Long-Term Care. Ms. Morton served as the Executive Vice President of NASL (National Association for the Support of Long-Term Care) since 2010.

Joe Greenman, J.D. is the Vice President & General Counsel of OHCA. Before attending law school, he worked for the United States House of Representatives for five years, helped plan, and implement the Congressional oversight of the Medicare program. Mr. Greenman will speak about Oregon healthcare issues.
