Spring 2014 issue of Divorce Magazine is now available for FREE download

TORONTO, ON (March 26, 2014) — The Spring 2014 issue of Divorce Magazine has just been released, and you can download your copy for free at www.DivorceMagazine.com.

“I’m really pleased with the depth and breadth of articles in this issue,” says Editorial Director Diana Shepherd. “There’s something for everyone: whether you’ve just separated, are mid-way through the process, or have been divorced for some time.” According to Shepherd, Divorce Magazine was designed to be the print equivalent of a wise friend who has been through divorce and is now there to support readers through the process, she adds. “Divorce is never easy, but there are good ways and bad ways to go through it. The bad ways will leave you and your family emotionally and financially bankrupt; we try to demystify the legal process and show you how you can survive and even thrive post-divorce.”

Feature articles in the new issue include:

Breaking Free from Guilt

Allow your divorce negotiations to be driven by law and equity – not your feelings of guilt.

Child Support Overview

Married or not, all parents have a legal obligation to support their children; this article offers a general overview of how child support works.

Coming to Terms: Divorce Terminology in Court

A glossary of common divorce terms used in divorce litigation and court.

Saving on Legal Fees During Your Divorce

The issue also features a “Dotcom Directory”, which offers a listing of the best online and professional resources available to divorcing individuals.

In addition to the National edition of Divorce Magazine, there are regional editions that feature advice from local divorce professionals regarding legal, financial, co-parenting, children’s, and practical divorce-related issues.

Published since 1996, Divorce Magazine is North America’s only magazine devoted entirely to divorce-related issues. The magazine is designed to help divorcing individuals and families through the process in the most economical and least traumatic way possible. It offers practical help and information about divorce-related issues – from child support to visitation, mediation to litigation, divorce recovery to dating after divorce.

Divorce Magazine is published by Divorce Marketing Group – the only one-stop marketing agency dedicated to helping family lawyers and other divorce professionals grow their practices. Their other products include www.DivorceMagazine.com, Family Lawyer Magazine and www.FamilyLawyerMagazine.com, and nine print and web-based Divorce Guides. Divorce Marketing Group offers a full range of marketing services, including website design and promotion, social media marketing, video and podcast marketing, print advertising, and pay-per-click advertising campaign management.
