

National Logistics Group announces “trunk stock” solution with forward stocking locations

Reduces risk and cost of rep-managed inventory

Providence, RI, June 9, 2014/National Logistics Group/- National Logistics Group today announced its effective and cost efficient solution to the “trunk stock” challenges many medical device makers and suppliers face. The new service, which has been successfully implemented with existing customers, leverages National Logistic Group’s forward stocking locations to help businesses warehouse, manage and deliver product in compliance with state and federal regulations.

The solution consolidates inventory formerly held by reps, by hospital consignment and in uncontrolled storage units into forward stocking locations with 24/7 delivery and will-call pickup capabilities.

An existing customer said, “National Logistics Group’s expertise and network of warehouse locations has reduced the time our sales reps spend processing and making deliveries. It has also reduced risks associated with product expirations and the amount of resources we invest in inventory that cannot be reliably tracked.” Customer reps have embraced the new solution, saying it’s more efficient and easier to navigate. Brenda Sturm, National Logistics Group Director, said, “Medical device and medical supply companies have to comply with a vast set of regulations. They need to ensure they are delivering unexpired product, accurately tracking inventory, handling recalls and managing inventory costs. Our secure, controlled, forward stocking locations offer a more convenient and efficient solution for regulatory compliant inventory management.”
