Alpine Limousine Service Offers Complimentary Transfers To Rideshare Customers at Major New York Airports via Twitter

New Jersey based Alpine Limousine Service Launches Campaign To Support Industry Standards.

New York, NY (PRWEB) August 18, 2014

Maywood, NJ based Alpine Limousine Service will now offer rideshare customers using companies such as LYFT and Uber a free ride via Twitter. By following tweets via the companies Twitter page, based on available vehicles at the time, Alpine Limousine Service will immediately dispatch a luxury vehicle to the rider. Current rideshare passengers and clients alike should follow Alpine Limousine Service on its Twitter Page where the company will monitor and manage the rides. Anytime Alpine Limousine Service drops off a customer at one of the major New York Airports, it will tweet the availability of the vehicle and wait 15 minutes. The first twitter follower or rideshare customer to respond, will receive the free ride!

Alpine Limousine Service supports industry regulations for safety, training, insurance and licensing says company representatives. "We support solidarity within the chauffeured ground transportation industry, and to that end, are willing to offer free rides." says Owner Dori Avishay. "We want to expose rideshare and peer-to-peer customers to properly trained, insured and professional drivers and vehicles." Alpine Limousine Service sees this as an opportunity to support the needs of the tech traveler while letting them experience its great service.

On-Demand, Social Media and App technology continue to drive the way the industry does business today and in the future. Technology savvy travelers want to be in control and have choices at their fingertips.
