

Smart Rugged Phones From China Are More Affordable Than Ever

HIGH performance rugged smart phones are more accessible now than they have ever been thanks to Chinese smartphone makers claims China electronics supplier Chinavasion.

There is a growing demand for smartphones that are “Capable of handling everything life can throw at them while also offering the same internet capabilities consumers have come to expect from better-known brands” according to Chinavasion PR manager Rose Li.

“Cell phones can cost a lot and break at the drop of a hat,” said Li. “But that doesn't mean that people are prepared to accept substandard performance from rugged phones.” She continued.

“Up until now this has meant tech buyers had to make do with a rugged phone that offered half of the capabilities of other Android phones but came with the same price tag” according to Li.

Chinavasion Rugged Android Phone

- * Dustproof
- * Water Resistant
- * Shockproof
- * 4 Inch Screen
- * Bluetooth

“Rugged phones, which often only had a single core processor, came loaded with a five year old version of Android, had poor quality camera equipment and could cost up to 400 dollars” says Li

While western electronic manufacturers attempted to justify prices with videos and displays of gadgets earning their rugged label, Li says “China makers have been busy improving the performance of their rugged phones. Rugged phones don't need to cost more than two hundred dollars, the components and techniques are there to produce them for much less.”

“This is exactly what Chinavasion has done.”

Working hard to offer customers the latest in technology, Li says “Chinavasion offers a rugged smart phone for a little over 60 US dollars, a quarter of the price of any competitor.”

With the device running the Android 4.2 system, on a 1GHz dual core processor Li says “Buyers should expect the same high quality and leading performance they have grown to expect from other Android devices.”

Li mentions that Chinavasion has built a strong online reputation for its fast shipping times, high quality products and world-class customer service. “With 360,000 registered customers, Chinavasion has a strong reputation as a supplier of the latest gadgets.”

With so many registered customers from every corner of the world Chinavasion is your best choice for Android rugged phones online.