The University of Cincinnati game vs. the Memphis Tigers is sure to be an unforgettable night. The Bearcats will open the American Athletic Conference play on Saturday October 4th, at Paul Brown Stadium, home of the Cincinnati Bengals, in downtown Cincinnati. The UC football games have been moved Paul Brown Stadium for the 2014 year while their own Nippert Stadium is under renovation and expansion. The game starts at 7 p.m., and during halftime, Team Fastrax™ will be performing their famous pyrotechnic skydive. The night pyro is their most requested show and often causes UFO sightings in the surrounding areas. The show will be shown on the scoreboard with live air-to-ground video, so spectators can experience the show on a whole new level. The show consists of four TSA fireworks-licensed Team Fastrax demonstrators. They typically exit the aircraft at 5,000 to 4,500 feet above the ground. Pyro is ignited under canopy all the way to 500 feet then the demonstrators land in the target area.

John Hart, owner of Start Skydiving, and Founder of Team Fastrax™ said, “We are honored to be performing our pyrotechnic skydive for the University of Cincinnati Bearcats game, especially at such an amazing venue. The stadium is sure to be packed with Bearcat fans, and will be a night to remember.”

According to the Bearcats’ website, the team will be playing in its 127th season in 2014. The Bearcats’ program dates to 1885 and is one of the 10 oldest in major college football. The Bearcats have won 76 games over the last seven years, the most among the current American Athletic Conference.
