SILICON VALLEY, California – Oct. 3, 2014 – Votsh Inc., a product design company founded by Silicon Valley veteran Frank Cohen (Norton Antivirus, Sun Community Server, Apple Internet Kit), and inventor of the new Waves product successfully launched a Kickstarter campaign. Waves is a calming, automatic, and soothing artistic gadget for your home, office, and gift giving. Votsh has 5 provisional patents for the new Waves inventions, including a new Internet Of Things (IoT) technology to connect people, interactive multimedia artists, and developers around a platform that is a modern take on the Lava Lamp and Bluetooth speakers.

Two days in, Waves has already received $1,200 of its $10,000 goal - 12% of the way there. The money will be primarily used to manufacture Waves using established supply chain management companies.

“Our vision behind Waves is to unlock the artistic potential of everyone and share a calming and fun desktop light and sound show gadget,” said Frank Cohen, CEO and Founder of Votsh Inc., “With our quick success at gaining Kickstarter backers, Waves has obviously touched people wanting to explore their creative side and make really cool things.”

Waves is a Bluetooth speaker inside a chic box that sits nicely on your desk or furniture, or mounts to a wall as a floating shelf. Diffusion filters sit on top of the beautifully colored and animating lights. Use an ordinary pair of scissors to cut the diffusion filters into any shape you like - unleashing your creativity. Point-and-click easy Web-based show authoring on your smartphone, tablet, or browser lets you pair light and music to the filters. An on-line community is for sharing shows that play on your Waves. The result is cool, fun, calming, and a completely unique and meaningful gift.
