Iris Arc Wins Best Service Provider Solution in First Annual Relativity Fest Innovation Awards

Award honors Iris Data Services for building a unique managed services option in Relativity

Kansas City, November 3, 2014 – Iris Data Services, the leader in eDiscovery managed services, today announced that they have been awarded the Relativity Fest Innovation Award for Best Service Provider Solution for their Arc product. Arc was recognized for taking advantage of Relativity as a platform by providing their clients with a dedicated environment and administrative control within Iris' instance of Relativity.

Judges selected Arc because it uses various integration points to develop a cost-effective eDiscovery workflow, displays a full use of the API's capability to streamline processes, solves complex workflow needs, and creates an altogether new solution.

"We're thrilled that kCura has recognized how unique Arc is with this award," said Major Baisden, Iris' Co-Founder and President. "Relativity's flexibility as a platform has allowed Iris to create an incredible degree of alignment with our clients. Arc is the perfect complement to Relativity."

"The reaction to Arc has been amazing," said Damon Goduto, Iris' Co-Founder and Senior Vice President of Sales. "Arc has exceeded all of our expectations and clearly filled a large gap in the eDiscovery marketplace."

"It's awesome to see long-time partners like Iris Data Services continuing to innovate with the platform," said Andrew Sieja, President and CEO of kCura. "We're excited to honor them with this recognition."

In addition to Iris, kCura also recognized the law firm Troutman Sanders during a special ceremony at Relativity Fest. The annual user conference brought more than 1,000 users together for a three-day event featuring engaging panel discussions, hands-on labs, breakout sessions, and insights from both kCura staff and Relativity end users—all designed to provide a great Relativity educational experience.
