Clio and CalendarRules Offer New Integration to Help Lawyers Better Manage Busy Law Firms and Calendars

Themis Solutions Inc. and CalendarRules Partner to Offer Court Rules Integration to Clio Elite Calendar Users

For Immediate Release

San Francisco, CA and Vancouver, BC | Wednesday, February 18, 2015 - Lawyers looking to maximize their practice and minimize the risk of missing an important court deadline have a new integration partnership to help them achieve those goals. Clio, the leading cloud-based law firm practice management platform, and CalendarRules have announced an integration to bring court rules automation and legal docketing capabilities to Clio calendar users.

“Calculating deadlines is an important but time consuming process and the repercussions of not doing it properly can be severe. With the integration to CalendarRules, our users will be able to quickly and easily generate due dates and double-check calculations,” says Jack Newton, Clio’s CEO and Co-founder. “Many of Clio’s customers have litigation practices, and a product like CalendarRules is invaluable to their success and mitigating malpractice concerns. Clio’s Elite subscribers now benefit from a direct calendar integration that keeps them on track of all their court deadlines.”

Clio is the leading provider of cloud-based practice management, providing time, billing, and client collaboration tools for thousands of small and mid-sized law firms in over 50 countries. By using Clio, law firms can securely access their data from any Internet-connected device, including desktop and laptop computers, and smartphone or tablet devices. Lawyers can also leverage Clio’s cloud-based feature set to collaborate more closely with their clients and elevate their level of service.

With the new integration with CalendarRules, Clio’s Elite plan users can take full advantage of CalendarRules directly from their calendar in Clio. This benefits lawyers by allowing them to:

- link matters to CalendarRules jurisdictions (rule sets) to streamline data entry;
- select triggers, generate events, and populate their calendar with rules based events is simple and easy;

- use the Rules engine from CalendarRules to handle holidays, weekend rolling rules, and court/calendar day calculations.

“As a former practicing attorney, I can truly understand the benefit of using Clio to manage a successful practice. They offer a great product that helps lawyers to effectively use cloud technology to manage their firms,” says Scott Davis, Founder and CEO of CalendarRules. “And now with the new integration with CalendarRules, we are bringing together two cloud offerings that are a natural fit and an amazing solution for lawyers and law firms all across the country.”
