

iPatientCare and Transworld Systems Join Forces to Provide an Automated Collections Interface to iPatientCare Users for State of the Art Collections Process iPatientCare and Transworld Systems are now providing an automated collections interface for medical practices using iPatientCare software.

iPatientCare, Inc., a pioneer in Health, cloud-based ambulatory EHR and integrated practice management solutions, announced that working with Transworld Systems Inc. They will provide an automated collections interface to iPatientCare users for an efficient collections process.

iPatientCare Practice Management System and EHR users will be able to view the entire collections log and activities administered directly through Transworld Systems. It expedites the payment process, lowering internal costs and increasing cash flow for medical providers. The integrated system helps practices to identify, select and electronically transfer delinquent patient accounts to Transworld Systems for collections. Transworld Systems exhibited at iPatientCare National User Conference 2014 and demonstrated the complete process of integration.

“As part of our ongoing strategic initiative to develop interfaces with technology companies and healthcare organizations in 2015 and beyond, we are extremely excited to join forces with iPatientCare. Our best in class solution for healthcare organizations will now be available to users of iPatientCare software, as an extension of their normal workflow” said Terrell Schlundt, Vice President of Technology Partnerships and Alliances.

“iPatientCare is glad to have Transworld Systems on the board as one of our strategic alliances sharing the same ideas to ease the process and reduce the collection cost for our providers. We strive to create easy workflow for providers, as such this integration helps to make the patient payment collection process diplomatic so practices can maintain their positive patient relationships”, said Pranav Patel, General Manager, iPatientCare, Inc.
