

Chinavasion reports on the growing trend in Android Car Stereos from China.

Android Car Stereo and in car DVD players from China are proving a hit with consumers looking to enhance their in car entertainment.

Over that past 3 quarters Chinavasion has seen a significant growth in automotive accessories such as car stereos. Ms. Rose Li, PR Manager at Chinavasion says, “Whether people have a Ford, Volkswagen, BMW or other famous brand car we are seeing more and more customers buying an Android Car Stereo for their vehicle.”

These in car stereos come with features such as 3G dongle support, TV tuners, Wi-Fi and Bluetooth connectivity as well as letting users listen to music, watch videos and aid in navigation through GPS. Ms. Rose Li said, “Many new cars are available with this sort of in car head set but buying a new car just to get access to these features is an expensive and extravagant option that few people can afford.”

Android car stereos are able to provide many benefits to motorists and offer a cheaper alternative to purchasing a new car. Ms Li. says, “Android DVD players provide everything that people want when it comes to in car entertainment and GPS navigation. With stereos available for most car makes and models it's an easy way to upgrade your driving experience and get access to the latest in car entertainment.”

Combining entertainment and GPS navigation into one device brings the dual benefits of having step by step directions as well as a good level of entertainment. The units vary in price and are made for many different car manufacturers; they typically start from around $200.

Ms. Rose Li added, “While Android systems are accessible to most motorists Chinavasion also stocks cheaper car stereos that prove popular with younger drivers looking to upgrade their car’s sound system.”

These non-Android car stereos retail for less than a quarter of the Android enabled systems, they are typically enabled with Bluetooth and often feature USB and SD card inputs for accessing music. Ms. Li advised, “These systems offer an affordable way for people of with limited spare money to update an older cars music system and allow some modern features and functions that make motoring safer and more enjoyable.”

Chinese manufactures and wholesalers like Chinavasion can take advantage of low overheads, increasing competition and continuing advancements in technology to offer competitive prices' on car stereos, Rose Li summed this up, "By removing the barriers to cheap in car entertainment Chinavasion can pass on great savings to our customers bringing them lower prices on high quality car DVD players and Android car stereos."

"With manufacturer specific models for famous car brands as well as many universal fitting car stereos Chinavasion can offer an in car entertainment experience that you're unlikely to find outside of a new or expensive luxury vehicle" concluded Rose Li.
