

Long before Dan Miller hosted television shows like PBR Bull Riding, American Magazine, and Due West, one could find him on a dairy farm in Indiana, dreaming of movies, music, and the entertainment industry.

After attending college on a football scholarship, Miller headed to Los Angeles to pursue his dreams. There, he studied acting, worked in radio and television, and performed in clubs. Those jobs led to stages in Reno, Lake Tahoe, and Las Vegas, and a touring schedule that took him from Alaska to Florida.

When he moved to Nashville to pursue a recording career, Dan found more opportunities existed for him there in television, commercials, and voice-over work. For the next 15 years, he hosted a variety of television shows—including the Cable ACE award winning Top Card—and conventions for national corporations such as Toyota and Subaru.

After Dan and his family moved to Cody, Wyoming, he continued to host television shows including Xtreme Bulls on GAC (Great American Country) and the Best of the West on the Outdoor Channel. Many of Dan's fellow musicians in Nashville have accepted his invitation to play in Cody—performers such as Mel Tillis, the Bellamy Brothers, Kathy Mattea, Billy Dean, Suzy Bogguss, and Ed Bruce have entertained audiences in Cody as part of Miller's "Cody Wild West Shows."

For the past eleven years, Miller has entertained more than 100,000 people from 65 countries with his Dan Miller's Cowboy Music Revue in downtown Cody.
