Washingtonian Magazine Names Convergent Managing Director Sheila Stinson among Top Financial Advisors of 2016

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Sheila Stinson, CFP®, CTFA, a Managing Director at Convergent Wealth Advisors, has been recognized by Washingtonian magazine as being among the Top Financial Advisors of 2016. The publication's April issue ranks the top fee-only advisers in the Washington metro area and hit newsstands at the beginning of the month.

The Washingtonian ranking is based upon a survey of area financial experts asking: "Whom would you trust with your own money?" The Washingtonian also did their own research and consulted industry publications for the compilation of this list. The professionals on the list received the strongest recommendations from all sources.

"Sheila is a talented and seasoned advisor," said John Elmes, President of Convergent Wealth Advisors. "Her commitment to both clients and colleagues is inspiring. We are thrilled to have her as part of the Convergent family."

"I feel honored to be on this list with so many extraordinary advisors and professionals. Thank you to those who recommended me," remarked Sheila Stinson. Stinson is a recognized leader in providing integrated and goal focused advice to high net worth families and individuals. Her focus is on women in transition, philanthropic planning, generational wealth transfer, family meetings and education for high net worth individuals and families.
