capture your wedding day

Your wedding day is more than just a special moment in time. It marks the beginning of a brand new life with someone who you'll share everything with. You'll want to remember it all – not just the posed moments, but also the intimate, the unexpected and the once-in-a-lifetime moments that are a part of every wedding, whether big or small.

We want to help you capture every part of that special day so you can cherish the memories for years to come. Within this guide you'll find everything from tips about scheduling, to lighting and how to communicate with your photographer. I hope you find this information helpful, valuable and one less thing to stress about on your wedding day!

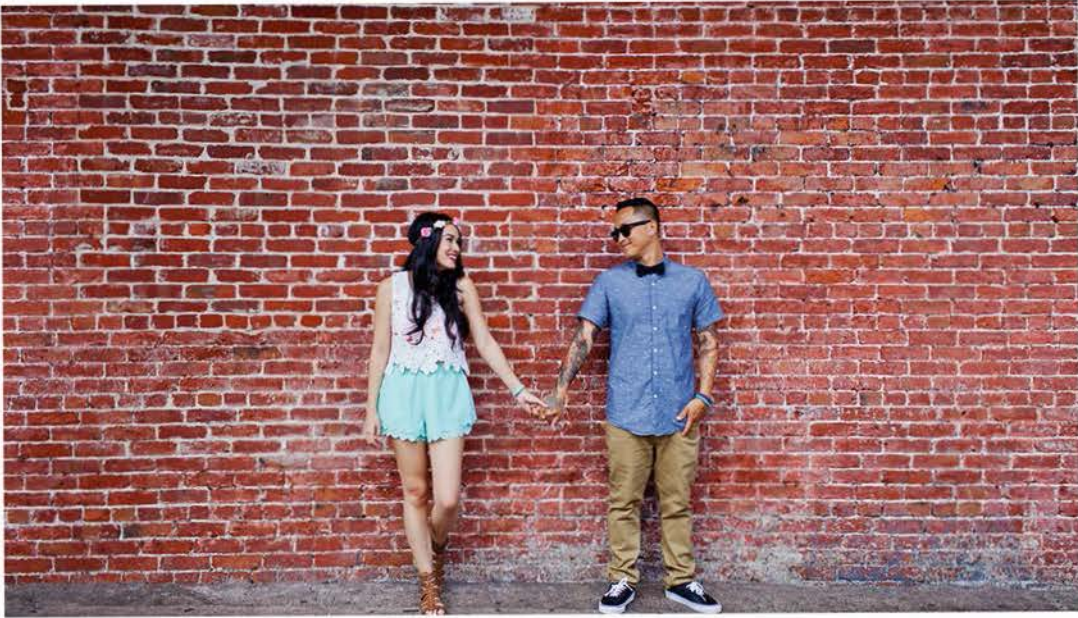

Engagement Session

You've probably seen your friend's photos on their Facebook after they get engaged. They usually go to a romantic, beautiful location and take pictures of the proposal, the happy couple holding hands, snuggling by a large oak tree, etc. The smiles are big, and there are usually several shots of the engagement ring.

So why do so many couples get professional engagement pictures?

To chronicle a major life event. Your engagement is a major life event, one that you will want to remember for years to come. Just like your wedding pictures, engagement pictures offer a visual reminder of those wonderful moments in the early stages of your life together. Many couples either include these pictures in the front of their wedding album or have a separate album for the engagement pictures. They are also perfect for framing.

Having a clear and complete schedule for your day will allow us to get the best shots and recognize any problems before they occur. For example, a clear schedule will ensure we know when your toasts are beginning and when we have time to get detail shots of your venue and the setting. It is especially important to make sure you have carved out enough time for formals and romantic shots. Please plan for at least five minutes per pose or grouping. It is always a good idea to have a buffer around each of these types of important times, to account for any transportation issues or just the unexpected.

If you want beautiful outdoor photos, you should not plan for your ceremony to start no later than at 5pm unless you want to take your photos before the ceremony. However, if it's cold outside and you intend to take your formal pictures inside anyways, then you only need to figure out how much time you need between the ceremony and reception so the food is served on time.

To plan and organize your photo timeline, here are some questions you need to ask:

1. Do I want outdoor pictures or pictures that require natural light? If so, what time does the sun go down at that time of year?
2. When do I want the formal pictures taken? Before the wedding, between the ceremony and the reception, etc.
3. How much time will I realistically need for these pictures? Make sure you plan a little extra time because unexpected delays almost always occur. It's better to be a little ahead of schedule than to be late.

Day After Session

Sometimes the traditional wedding day formal portraits just aren't enough. They are beautiful and certainly important, but there just isn't always time to get the intimate photos that most modern couples really want: the couple gazing into each other's eyes, holding hands, romantic camera angles, etc. There are so many formal poses and pictures to take, so many family members who need their shot with you, and never enough time. Unless you want to set aside several hours of your wedding day for photos, you may want to consider a day after session.

If you are having a destination wedding, then having a day after session is an especially great idea because you can take full advantage of the beautiful scenery.

You can wear your tux and gown for these sessions to make it obvious that these are wedding pictures, or you can wear something completely different. You can make them more formal, or you can make them fun and different. Throw in your own personality; these pictures showcase you and your love for your spouse!

THE LOVE STORIES

At our wedding, Keoni and his team were all courteous professionals. His team demonstrated the perfect mixture of laid back, fun, and directive. The picture I am trying to paint is that when you work with Kpix, you work with individuals who not only capture your wedding day but enrich the entire experience. -Kai Y

Keoni not only took beautiful photos of our special day, he was down to earth and fun to be around. He and his second photographer were focused and professional while making us feel comfortable. Even though they were snapping away like crazy, they were quite stealth about it and never felt burdensome at all. Keoni was receptive to my few requests, but I trusted his skills. He mostly captured the day authentically as it happened, which is what we really wanted. -Kristen K

Keoni was amazing! We hired him for our wedding and even though we didn't meet beforehand, he made us feel like we were old friends. Other than the times we were posing for pictures, we both forgot that he was there, which was a really good thing! He finished our pictures really quickly and we were so happy with the result. Also, we loved the way he sent us our pictures - really creative and unique. We would hire him again in a heartbeat :). -Lauren S

When friends and family looked at my wedding photos I think they were moved by how Keoni used the natural lighting and scenery which truly captured the highlights during our wedding at the Hale Koa. I actually think now looking back upon that day and evening that the photos have been the best memories from our entire wedding! Trust me, you want to have great photos to remember the event because it goes by in a blink of an eye. -Sarah W “Photography is a way of feeling, of touching, of loving.

What you have caught on film is captured forever...
it remembers little things,
long after you have forgotten everything. ”

Most commonly asked questions

1) How many years experience and what style do you have?

We have been photographing weddings for the past 10 years. Although weddings are our primary focus, many of our wedding couples return to us for maternity, newborn and family photos. Our style is primarily documentary. We also enjoy capturing the candid moments.

2) Is it possible to go to different locations for photos throughout the day?

We do not put a limit on locations. However we do ask that you contract us for the proper amount of hours/coverage which will include travel time to the desired location. Keep in mind that the more you travel on your wedding day the more chances to get your dress dirty getting in and out of vehicles, etc...

3) What is the turnaround time for products?

Proofs are available for viewing approximately 2 to 4 weeks after your wedding day. We may post a few sneak peek images on our blog and facebook before that. Make sure that you and your friends are subscribers of our social media. For albums the production time is 1 to 3 months after final design approval based upon the album manufacturer.

4) Do I have to order my album immediately after my wedding?

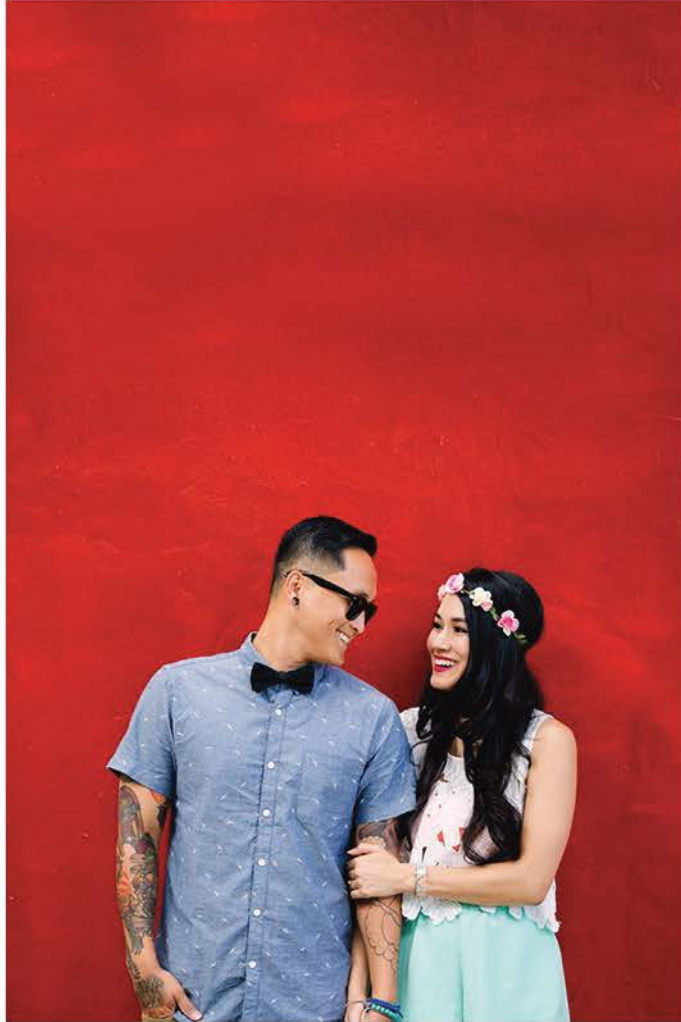

You may order your album at any time. Pricing is guaranteed for 30 days after your wedding proofs go online. After that you will be subject to the current pricing at the time of your order.

5) What is your payment policy?

We accept checks, cash and all major credit cards. We require a non-refundable retainer fee of $200. This keeps your date from being booked by another couple. The remaining balance is due no later than the day of your event.

6) Do we receive copyright permission of our images?

We give you reprint permission which means you have our permission to print the images at any lab of your choice.
