FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Focused on Feeding Disaster Victims in Haiti, Hand-of-Hope Needs Your Help.

Johnson City, Tennessee, November 4th, 2016 /Experience Marketing Group LLC/ -- From sending meals for distribution to the needy and homeless during freezing weather to times of crisis and disaster Hand-of-Hope has mobilized all of its resources to provide hot, healthy meals. Taking action on previous events such as the Mexican Border Crisis, the Haitian Earthquake, the Louisiana Flooding and most recently Hurricane Matthew has depleted their meal reserves.

“The people of Haiti need our help for the foreseeable future and we cannot do it alone; we need your help!” says Denise Brumby, Volunteer Project Coordinator.

Hand-of-Hope has no paid staff and very little overhead so donations are highly efficient in delivering food and water to people in need. Hand-of-Hope is also a project of United Charitable, a registered 501(c)3 public charity, who monitors and is accountable to verify donations are used in the manner they were intended. They are asking for donations in this time of crisis that will help them respond with the greatest impact.

There are 3 methods of donation:

1. Make a direct financial donation through the United Charitable portal on Hand-of-Hope.com Due to virtually no overhead, donations are highly dollar efficient; going to directly aid those in need.
2. Budget an annual, quarterly or monthly, tax deductible donation to Hand-of-Hope; helping to support meal efforts on your behalf.
3. When shopping online use the Cause Network portal found on the Hand-of-Hope website. When you or your employees use Cause Network to buy from over 1,000 participating merchants a small portion of all sales will be sent to Hand-of-Hope as a donation. For more info visit www.causenetwork.com

“We can’t thank people enough for their help feeding the people hit by this storm in the Caribbean” , Denise Brumby
