Envirosight Publishes New White Paper, “Fast-Tracking Municipal Procurement”

RANDOLPH, NJ—November 8, 2016— With budgets under pressure, it is essential that municipalities look for innovative ways to do more with less. Cooperative purchasing accomplishes just that. In a new white paper, Envirosight reveals the benefits of cooperative purchasing contracts and lays out how to get started.

“Cooperative contracts streamline the procurement process by eliminating the need for competitive bidding on the part of municipalities,” says Tammy Smith, Purchasing Specialist for Envirosight and author of the paper. “We created this white paper for procurement professionals looking to bring simplicity and ease to the municipal purchasing process.”

This white paper is published as a part of Envirosight’s commitment to create and share reference material that benefits decision-makers in the waste water industry.
