Denver, Colorado, February 21, 2017. LawToolBox, the award-winning deadline management solution for law firms and legal departments, has three announcements: (1) LawToolBox365 is extending its matter-based deadline application so users can also create for that matter a document folder, calendar, notebook, and shared Inbox inside Microsoft Office, (2) LawToolBox was invited by Microsoft to participate in National Entrepreneurship Week, and (3) in celebration of National Entrepreneurs Week the company is offering an extended free trial of its modern LawToolBox365 add-in for Office 365 and a special offer to attorneys who take asylum immigration cases pro bono to use that deadline calculator at no cost.

First, LawToolBox is extending its matter-based backbone in Outlook beyond deadlines so that when a new matter is set up, LawToolBox365 can also create for that matter a document folder, calendar, notebook, and shared Inbox \(video\) inside Microsoft Office. LawToolBox is leveraging products within Office 365 that law firms and legal departments are already paying for, which will allow law firms to take advantage of powerful Microsoft security, collaboration, and business intelligence features. Because LawToolBox365 deadlines can be added to Outlook, attorneys with case management products that two-way sync with Outlook can already surface LawToolBox deadlines in their case management calendars. Deadlines and timelines are not unique to the legal vertical, and LawToolBox is positioning to extend its product into other verticals, including commercial and residential real-estate closing deadlines, regulatory deadlines, and even our most recent addition with mutual fund deadlines.

Second, National Entrepreneurship Week is being held February 20-24. LawToolBox will be featured with a handful other companies including Yelp, LinkedIn, Square, and Wix. Throughout Entrepreneurship Week, in addition to participating on the live broadcast kick-off media event in New York City on February 21, 2017 at 10 am ET, LawToolBox will also be hosting a series of live events in New York and webinar events. Presentations will focus on legal professionals using Office 365 and tech consultants supporting Office 365 to show them how matter-based deadlines and documents can automate industry specific deadline templates - not just legal - but for any industry.

Third, to celebrate National Entrepreneurship Week LawToolBox has two special offers: (1) legal professionals and tech consultants who download our Office 365 add-in by March 15, 2017 get LawToolBox365 legal bundle for office 365 for free for 2 Months (free trial offer); and (2) attorneys starting a new law firm and experienced attorneys who take on asylum cases pro bono can take
