

HomeMetry Releases Comprehensive Property Reports to Assist with Investment Research

New Reports Offer More Detailed Real Estate Market Research Insights than Any Other Single Source

HomeMetry, the national address and property directory, known for its extensive free property listings and information about every address in the country, has now released premium comprehensive property reports. Previously only available to top real estate agents and professional property investors, these reports include many years of Assessor records compiled from government databases across the country. These reports give home buyers access to national property records for greater real estate market research insights than any other single reporting source.

Property reports have been used by real estate professionals and property investors for many years. The records have historically been maintained in restricted databases and difficult to access or organize. Each premium Property Detail Report from HomeMetry contains as much as 10 years of assessor records organized in one place for easy access online.

The new HomeMetry property reports make it possible for individual home buyers and property investors to make better purchase decisions. They contain comprehensive real estate records and historical property information on more than 100,000,000 properties nationwide. The detailed property information contained in them includes; the current property owner, tenancy status, most recent sale, property sales history, property square footage, year built, recent real estate taxes, title documents, history of assessed land value, building permits, violations, zoning and much more.

To discover hidden records about an upcoming home purchase or potential property investment, people can get the full property detail reports today at HomeMetry.com.

About HomeMetry

HomeMetry (<https://homemetry.com/>) provides information about every property in the country. Each listing contains all property related records needed in making a decision: home values, sales history, taxes, size, structure characteristics, neighborhood information, local organizations, and other valuable information.

The records presented on Homemetry.com include publicly available information and estimates made by HomeMetry. Every piece of information will help you in making a right decision about a property – house, condo, apartment or commercial property.

The complete Homemetry database consists of over 117 million properties. Data helps you to make a decision to buy or to rent and determine proper values. What makes HomeMetry unique is that we calculate unique characteristics that add value to a property or become a bargaining factors.
