Keep Updated on the Volatility of the Edible Oil Industry, New Emerging Markets & Innovations to Improve your Bottom Line

India opens bulk exports of edible oils

The Hindu Business Line March 27 2017

In a major policy shift, India's Government opened up the exports of edible oils such as groundnut oil, soyabean oil, sesame oil and maize oil in bulk quantity to boost the overall edible oil export and improve the utilisation of the domestic oil millers. This is a welcoming step for the industry as opportunities are immense for India's groundnut oils to countries such as China and Europe. Additionally, India's non-GMO soyabean will have an advantage in the international market as those nations looking for non-GMO soya bean oil.

China edible oil price slump to hit palm oil imports

Reuters Commodities | Mon Apr 10, 2017 | 9:51pm EDT

Palm oil comprises more than 70 percent of China's edible imports of about five million tonnes a year. The country is the world's second-largest palm oil buyer. China's edible oils, used mainly for cooking, come largely from domestically grown and imported soybeans, imported palm oil and smaller crops such as canola and rapeseed. Of late, regular auctions of state rapeseed oil reserves and old crop soybean reserves have led to a glut of edible oils in the market, hitting palm oil imports. A KL-based palm oil trader commented that demand is slowing down coming from the two major buyers India and China.

Pakistan becomes third-largest importer of cooking oil

The Express Tribune > Business Published: January 21, 2017

Exploring other potential market, Pakistan has emerged as the third largest importer of cooking oil after China and India, the increase comes on back of rising population and higher disposable income. Apart from this, Pakistan is well positioned to be the transit trade to Afghanistan and Central Asian countries. What is the status of infrastructure in Pakistan to support this emerging growth - Does it have sufficient import terminals at sea ports to keep the flow of goods smooth?

In Asia, palm oil is the most widely used as a cooking oil, yet it is the most controversial edible oil and comes under intensifying scrutiny - from its sustainability to the presence of contaminant called 3-MCPD, which is created during the processing of all refined edible oils. The European Food Safety Authority made a study and concluded that the highest levels of GE, as well as 3-MCPD and 2-MCPD (including esters) were found in palm oils and palm fats, followed by other oils and fats.

The Malaysian Palm Oil Board is committed to monitor the latest news and research on 3-MCPD and glycidyl esters in food products to clarify, resolve and reduce the potential health risk from these compounds. Responding to consumer needs and market trends, most agribusiness focused on edible oils and fats, produces a wide range of refined and fractionated vegetable oils.

Whether you are an oil miller, crusher, processor or trader, you will need to understand any trend or event that impacts your bottom line - whether it's current soybean, palm oil, corn, canola and oilseed prices.
