Mayne Stage Fact Sheet

About	With a nod to the historic past of this grand facility, Mayne Stage is a historic jewel on Chicago's north side. Mayne Stage experienced major renovations through 2010, modernizing the building but maintaining its historical integrity and 1930's-era art deco splendor. The results are a unique event space featuring three distinct areas; a spacious mezzanine area, a raised stage with state-of-the-art lighting and sound, and a vibrant ground level room. Mayne Stage is part of Stone Heritage Collection, the leading luxury hospitality arm of TAWANI Enterprises, Inc.

History	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Mayne Stage opened in 1912 as a theatre and movie house

- In the 1930s, the facility was remodeled using an Art Deco theme and renamed the Co-Ed Theater because of its proximity to Loyola University
- The Co-Ed closed in 1954, and from 1956 until 2008, the building served in various capacities from synagogue to a shoe repair store
- After the 2010 renovation, Mayne Stage's beautiful mixed-use space can now accommodate 220 seated or 275 standing guests, or each area can be rented separately

Offerings

Mezzanine - The space can accommodate 50 seating or up to 75 standing guests. The area provides a non-obstructed view of the stage and the ground floor, and includes a built-in-bar, dark wood accents. This space is ideal for a cocktail reception, VIP dinner, break-out sessions or New Year's celebration

Theater Space – This space includes the stage plus the ground floor. The ground floor can accommodate up to 50 guests. When combined with the other spaces, the theatre space makes for unforgettable performances, seminars, video parties and presentations. The theatre space is also utilized for weddings, fundraisers and corporate events, and offers generous space for meetings and team building activities

Living Room - Located on the third-level, this airy room provides the perfect bridal dressing room for up to 35 guests. The room could also serve as a retreat or back-of-house space for anyone needing a relaxing refuge or additional storage when using the Theatre Space and/or Mezzanine. The living room space can be booked individually or in combination. When booked individually, this space is welcoming for small private parties, meetings and more intimate holiday gatherings
