Envirosight Releases Guide to Municipal Grants

Free guide explains outside funding opportunities for water and wastewater utilities.

Randolph, NJ—July 31, 2018— Envirosight, a leading manufacturer and distributor of pipeline inspection equipment, has released a new guide to municipal grants and outside funding opportunities for water and wastewater utilities. This guide helps utilities understand the various types of grants, what they can be used for, and how to find grants that suit their community's location, situation and needs.

For many water and wastewater utilities, extra funding is essential for operations, maintenance and new development. An infusion of resources can support new infrastructure, perform general or green upgrades, or improve emergency preparedness. Additionally, grants can provide funding to help utilities make necessary changes without raising rates for their customers.

"Grants can make a big difference in a community," says Allison Symonds, Marketing Communications Manager for Envirosight. "But, understanding and accessing that funding can be a challenge. So many different organizations offer support, but the different application conditions can easily overwhelm applicants."
