Every day, thousands of documents of increasing variety circulate around us. Fortunately, new technologies applied to office environments allow companies to manage the entire document cycle, from design, generation and distribution, to capture, storage and retrieval. The result: maximum optimization of business operations and important cost reduction.

From its foundation, DocPath has focused on the development of modular and scalable solutions that cover all documentation requirements. DocPath works with many platforms, providing a wide variety of output formats for multiple environments. Moreover, DocPath solutions are easily integrable with existing business applications.

DocPath has recently launched DocPath® Ipanema Technology™, the new core technology of the latest DocPath solutions. This new collaborative, multi-platform and multi-language design environment consists of a technological change which has never been experienced before, offering companies a radical new way of meeting their document needs.
