

Evoke Consulting Names Michael Dallara Chief Operating Officer

Arlington, VA- Evoke Consulting, a top provider of management consulting, information technology and business services to the federal government, is proud to announce industry leader Michael Dallara as its Chief Operating Officer. Dallara will lead the firm's service delivery and business operations.

Dallara brings 25 years of experience supporting the federal government with senior leadership roles at both publicly traded defense contractors and privately held technology service providers. "Evoke will greatly benefit from Mike's proven success as an executive leader across a broad spectrum of our industry," said Evoke Managing Partner Jim Loreto. "His wealth of expertise will contribute to Evoke's growth and help transition Evoke into the mid-tier."

Most recently, Dallara served as the Executive Vice President at Cyber Defense Technologies. Previously he served as Sevatec's COO, Engility's Federal Civilian Senior Vice President and General Manager and has held leadership positions within L-3 Communications and Harris Corporation. Dallara earned a Master of Science from the National Defense University as an Industry Fellow and his Bachelor's degree from the University of Florida.

"Mike's robust experience leading operations and finance was a perfect fit for Evoke," added Evoke Managing Partner Greg Blaisdell. "Tightly integrating all of the business operations under Mike's analytical and process-driven approach will provide increased efficiency as we deliver on our customers' missions."

About Evoke

Evoke Research and Consulting, LLC is a Service-Disabled Veteran-Owned Small Business that provides professional services and technology support in management, organizational improvement, and technology and engineering services. Evoke is an ISO 9001:2008, ISO 20000, CMMIDEV/3SM and CMMISVC/3 SM Certified Management Consulting firm headquartered in Arlington, Virginia. evokeconsulting.com.