

Are you ready for ediscovery? MailTank can help you beat the rap!

eDiscovery is here to stay. Managing business communications is now a lot more difficult. If you've been following the news, you know that missing email is a red flag for zealous investigators wanting to make a case against you.

No one who's running a business since the new regulations kicked in can be ➡ sure when cyber-sleuths from the government -- or a private party nursing a grievance -- may show up at your door with a subpoena in hand.

All of us have learned by now that we need to be careful with email. Even the most innocent exchanges might be taken out of context and may be used against you. If an eager prosecutor or attorney decides to launch a fishing expedition, don't be surprised -- be prepared.

If one day you are asked to produce all of the email you've ever exchanged with a customer, prospect, lawyer, employee -- or just about anyone you've done business with, will you be ready? ➡

MailTank can give you a way to prove your hands are clean. It's the one sure way to beat the rap. For a small fee each month (and you'll be surprised at how small it is), MailTank can be your insurance policy against attempts to stick it to you in court.
