

National Education Foundation, a 501 (c) (3) non profit organization, headquartered in metropolitan Washington, DC, is the world's leading non-profit organization bridging the digital and academic divides through online education. Its premier project, CyberLearning, provides IT, business, digital literacy, test prep, math and science education to millions in many countries including the U.S., India, Egypt, Jordan, and Mauritius.

www.nefusa.org

Goals

- To make high-quality online education available for our disadvantaged students by helping to set up holistic CyberLearning Academies in most of our Nation's disadvantaged schools by 2020
- To help bridge the digital and academic divides by training millions of disadvantaged students and adults in math, science, digital literacy, IT and business skills
- To help reduce global terrorism and/or improve economic conditions by training, certifying, and then placing, unemployed youth in job-related skills such as IT
- To provide high-quality low-cost customized online training to organizations, especially those serving the disadvantaged, and communities worldwide

Advisory Group

Dr. Appu Kuttan (Chairman and Founder) — The winner of the “2006 Global Digital Literacy Champion Award,” Dr. Kuttan, often described as a pioneer “Cyber Philanthropist” is a globally renowned management and education systems expert as well as a national and global leader in bridging the digital divide. He is the author of many innovative concepts, such as "CyberLearning," "Management By Systems (MBS)," "Total Tennis," and "Holistic Executive," has advised many world leaders, including Rajiv Gandhi (on making India an IT power), and has helped develop many young celebrities including world tennis champions Andre Agassi and Monica Seles and U.S. Presidential honoree Roger Kuttan. He has helped to improve many socio-economic systems including traffic safety and education in Puerto Rico; social security and healthcare in Venezuela; national IT plan implementation in India; U.S. tennis and digital education in the U.S, India, Egypt, Mauritius, Afghanistan, Iraq etc.. He also is the author of From Digital Divide to Digital Opportunity. Dr. Kuttan is a passionate ‘difference-maker.’ He founded the NEF after the sale of the Nick Bollettieri Tennis Academy to IMG, the billion dollar sports management pioneer.

Hon. Clarence Cooper

U.S. Federal Judge

Dr. Laurence Peters

NEF VP and former Director of MAR*TEC at Temple University, the White House and the U.S. Education Department

Alan Weinberger

CEO, ASCII Group

Edward Davis

NEF VP and the Author of Lessons for Tomorrow: Bringing America’s Schools Back From The Brink

Dr. Jack Farrell, VP and Dean, Union County College

Monica Seles, Tennis Star

Pam Shriver, Tennis Hall of Famer