Executive Smarts, LLC announced today that it has opened a new office in Raleigh, NC. The new office will provide interim executive services and executives to fill short and long term management gaps for clients. This service represents a strong belief in the economic recovery for the global economy.

“The new Raleigh, NC office represents our commitment to provide a new model for the workplace that can better meet the needs of our clients in the SE USA,” said Jim Stewart, CEO of Executive Smarts. “We believe the services provided in this new office will complement local and regional employment practices.”

The Executive Smarts’ Raleigh, NC operation will be managed by Vince Papi. “Our Raleigh office is committed to bringing SE USA clients accessible, high-quality interim executives just as we are for those clients being served in the rest of the United States,” said Vince Papi.

Mr. Papi, who will also continue to oversee the Pittsburgh office, added “Executive Smarts is working on a number of other locations for new offices in order to better serve our rapidly expanding international client base.”
