California Engineering Firm Keeps Billing Staff Small with CCG Electronic Invoicing

Increased efficiency and improved tracking are key

Minneapolis, MN — May 30, 2012 — California engineering firm ENGEEO recently implemented Central Consulting Group (CCG)'s Electronic Invoicing software for Deltek Vision® to improve billing efficiency.

"By switching from a manual invoice review process to an automated process with CCG Electronic Invoicing, we're able to process 400 invoices a month with just one billing specialist," said ENGEEO Controller Lora Dominick.

ENGEEO's manual process involved creating and emailing PDFs of invoices to project managers to review, along with supporting documentation. Project managers would send back marked-up draft invoices whenever they were done. "It was very difficult to keep track of which invoices had been reviewed and which hadn't," said ENGEEO Senior Billing Specialist Stacey Landry. "Each month I had to create a manual checklist, and make a lot of follow-up phone calls and emails to project managers."

With CCG Electronic Invoicing, project managers are notified via email when draft invoices are ready to review online. They can then mark up the invoices electronically with built-in notation tools, and the system keeps track of which invoices have been reviewed. "I can go into the system and see which invoices are ready to send to clients," Landry said. "The tracking ability saves me an enormous amount of time and stress, and because project managers are reviewing invoices faster, I can get the invoices out the door faster."
