Seattle, WA – Guests will enjoy nothing but smooth skies and comfortable travel at the Courtyard Seattle Southcenter, which has recently completed its second phase of renovations aimed at improving its accommodations.

The hotel in Tukwila, Washington, finished its room renovations at the end of January and invites guests to relax in refined personal spaces that fit the needs of any visitor. Whether a business traveler touching down for an evening between flights or a leisure vacationer exploring the natural beauty of the Pacific Northwest, guests staying at the hotel near SeaTac will enjoy an ideal mixture of new style and features.

From the moment guests step into their room, they will notice soft new carpet and new wallpaper accents that give a pop of color to the space, along with new window treatments. The same sense of style and bright touch of color is applied to the hallway area, in addition to new light fixtures and wallpaper. Guests can also relax on plush sofa sleepers as well as on new soft linens on the bed. In the bathroom, new tile and modern décor refine the space and create a sophisticated environment to get ready in the morning. Thanks to a new partnership with Paul Mitchell, the Tukwila hotel now offers its guests new bath products, including shampoo, conditioner and body soap from the famed beauty experts.

The first phase, which was completed in 2010, brought a number of traveler-friendly perks to its lobby area, including a new dining experience — The Bistro — Eat. Drink. Connect. The Tukwila hotel also replaced its front desk with welcome pedestals that promote greater service and interaction between travelers and staff. Extra flexible seating provides ideal places to work and socialize. The signature GoBoard allows travelers to explore the surrounding area courtesy of an oversized touch-capable television screen, which displays the latest news headlines, business reports, sports scores and weather forecasts as well as directions and information to local venues.

To celebrate the completion of its renovations, the hotel near Seattle Tacoma Airport invites guests to reserve its new Park Here, Fly There deal.
