About RFK by Jack Holmes

A historically accurate solo performance chronicling the last 4 years of politician Robert F. Kennedy's life. Featuring music, film and footage from the era. Experience 1968 again -- the year that shaped a generation.

The show played to sold out houses in Philadelphia in October 2012 and was extended 2 weeks. This production will return to the famed Adrienne Theatre in Philadelphia after appearing at the Capital Fringe Festival.

The Philadelphia Inquirer says:

"The history play RFK is special in several ways. It puts us easily into another era — and in this production, with time-machine force. It's exceptionally well performed by Russ Widdall, and shifts back and forth in time, but does so with grace and electricity."

About You the Artist or Company

New City Stage Company is dedicated to presenting high quality professional theatre that engages audiences on a variety of levels; not only entertaining them but also encouraging awareness of current issues and politics. We strive to create a stimulating theatrical experience that evokes thoughtful reflection and discussion after the play for all patrons, especially students.

We draw our season from contemporary and classical works, with a special focus on including regional and world premiere, as well as rarely done award-winning works that are not often preformed in contemporary professional theatre

Based in downtown Philadelphia, New City Stage Company recently added the mission bringing our most popular and though-provoking works to other cities and festivals during the summer.
