

Jones Walker signs Managed Services Agreement with Iris Data Services
Electronic Discovery Company Delivers Document Review Environment for Law Firm

NEW ORLEANS, August 19, 2013 — Iris Data Services, a leading provider of managed discovery services, announced today that Jones Walker, a national law firm, has licensed kCura's Relativity from Iris and will host it in Iris' managed services environment, Iris Discovery Management, that includes discovery consulting, eDiscovery processing, and data hosting using Relativity. Iris Data Services is a leading supplier of discovery solutions including electronic discovery, managed litigation services, and document review technologies such as kCura's Relativity, which includes Relativity Analytics and Relativity Assisted Review.

"Client service is our number one goal at Jones Walker – and the implementation of Relativity in the Iris Discovery Management environment provides the foundation for our firm to meet and exceed client expectations," said Ruark Chick, CIO at Jones Walker. "Our partnership with Iris allows us to maintain administrative functions of Relativity while leveraging other discovery services that Iris provides on an as-needed basis, supplementing our own discovery capabilities with additional process, people and capacity. Additionally, Iris Discovery Management environment provides the means for our firm to collaborate with our clients, experts, and co-counsel by providing secure access to case documents."

"Hosting Relativity in Iris' managed services environment, Iris Discovery Management, will allow Jones Walker to leverage Iris' Relativity expertise," said Iris Vice President of Managed Services, Scott Berger. "Jones Walker will also benefit greatly from the enhancements Iris provides such as case management services, custom reporting, and foreign language translation."
