Zuercher Technologies Acquires BullBerry Systems

Sioux Falls, SD - November 11, 2013 - Zuercher Technologies, LLC, a leading provider of public safety software solutions, announced today its acquisition of BullBerry Systems, Inc., a mapping technology company with a focus on improving emergency services response times by providing intuitive and intelligent mapping applications.

The acquisition enhances the product suite that Zuercher Technologies already offers by including the Insight mapping products originally developed by BullBerry. The BullBerry Insight products, now offered as Insight Mapping, are comprehensive ESRI-based geographic information systems designed specifically for 911 dispatchers and emergency responders. Zuercher Technologies' current client agencies will also benefit from an increase in the company's mapping capabilities.

Both companies share a philosophy that exceptional customer relationships combined with unparalleled support are part of what make them stand out from other vendors in the public safety industry. As a result of this, BullBerry client agencies will continue to receive the service and support which they have come to expect. These agencies can also benefit from the many other services and products Zuercher Technologies offers.

"Working with Michael and the Zuercher Technologies team over the years provided us with the assurance that this was the right move for BullBerry," commented Norton Lovold, President of BullBerry Systems, Inc. "We wanted to make sure that our client agencies would continue to be supported at the same high level to which they are accustomed. With the services and support which Zuercher Technologies provides, we know that we are protecting our customers' investment in BullBerry."

"We have learned a lot about BullBerry's vision and philosophy for supporting clients, which runs parallel to our values at Zuercher Technologies," stated Michael Zuercher, President of Zuercher Technologies. "We are excited about this journey and the new products and services we can offer to all our clients. This acquisition will only enhance what our company can provide to our clients and to the industry."
