

---

ORDOVER

---

Author | Podcaster | Designer

---

Podcast Host

CraftLit: a podcast for crafters who love books has been continuously on the air since 2006, delighting listeners with its Audiobooks With Benefits™ format. Next book: North and South by Elizabeth Gaskell begins February 7, 2014.

Author

Ordover has released three books in the last two years with more on their way in 2014. Her young adult fiction, Grounded, and the What Would Madame Defarge Knit?® knitting essay/pattern books are joined by her blogged book: Cognitive Anchoring.

Designer

Ordover's designs can be found in her Defarge books, her Novel Socks eBook, and in various "...from Around the World" books from Quayside Publishing.

Her work appears in her shop on ravelry.com and via her blog at MamaOKnits.com.

Heather Ordover

Heather Ordover is a writer of stories, teacher of things, knitter of socks, and mother of boys. She can be found on her weekly podcast CraftLit® and at her knitting blog, Mama O Knits too Much.

She lives, teaches, and writes in Northern VA with her amused husband, goofy sons, and far too many devoted mosquitoes.

"What Would Madame Defarge Knit?" is the first book in the WWMDfK? series.

"Grounded" is the first book in The Seven series.

