

World's First Action Camera with Watch Monitor/Remote Control: Chinavasion

Shenzhen, Guangdong, March 27, 2014

Chinavasion, the Shenzhen based electronics company known as a worldwide leader in wholesale electronics, announced today the launch of its newest product, Eyeshot, an action camera with stellar specifications, such as its Panasonic 16 megapixel CMOS Sensor, Wi-Fi, and Ambarella A7L Chip for full HD 1920x1080 image quality – plus a unique twist that sets it apart from all other action cameras.

The Eyeshot is the first full hd action camera to come with a watch monitor/remote control that allows users to see what the camera is seeing, thus keeping its angle always within eyeshot, hence the name.

This is great for users because it allows them to make adjustments without needing to stop, remove the camera and review the footage. In addition to displaying the camera's view, Eyeshot's watch also acts as a remote control for recording, further simplifying the recording process and allowing the action to continue uninterrupted.

While the watch monitor/remote control is certainly the most unique aspect of Eyeshot, its Panasonic 16 megapixel CMOS Sensor comes in a close second.

"Panasonic is already a household name in quality electronics, and at 16 megapixels, this CMOS sensor has a higher amount of megapixels than even the highest end product of popular action camera brand GoPro," said Rose Li, Chinavasion's PR Manager. "And for those who say in order to utilize a high megapixel sensor, one must have a great sensor, Chinavasion agrees. That is why each Eyeshot contains an Ambarella A7L Chip, a benchmark in the HD camera world, and the same chip used by GoPro's Hero3+."

Furthermore, the Eyeshot comes with Wi-Fi capabilities, which, with a free app called Actioncam! available for iOS and Android, allows you to review videos, edit them, control your camera remotely, and upload your videos and pictures to Youtube, Facebook, Twitter, dropbox and more. Eyeshot is also waterproof up to 60 meters, making it capable of handling everything from scuba diving to surfing.

"Now with such an array of great features that not only compete with but exceed the top products in the category, you might think the price would be high," continued Li. "However, at slightly over $300 for one – plus a much lower price for buyers who purchase two or more – this truly is the best deal for an action camera that you will find anywhere in the marketplace."

Chinavasion is a Hong Kong and Shenzhen based wholesaler. For more information and pricing on all of their products, visit <http://www.chinavasion.com>.