

Iris Data Services Opens Client Services Office in Nashville Leading Electronic Discovery Company Adds Tennessee Litigation Support Operations

NASHVILLE, April 14, 2014 — Iris Data Services, a leading provider of managed litigation services, announced today that it has opened a new client services facility in Nashville at 424 Church Street, Suite 2000, Nashville, TN 37219, (615) 913-4494; Iris' Regional Director for Nashville is Zeke Alicea (305-721-0951). This is a litigation support office that houses project management, client support, and sales operations. Iris Data Services is a leading supplier of discovery solutions including electronic discovery, managed litigation services, and document review technologies including kCura's Relativity, Relativity Analytics, and Relativity Assisted Review.

The new Iris office is home to project managers, analysts, forensics examiners, and sales management, all serving law firms and corporate legal departments throughout the southeast United States. Nashville represents the 12th major U.S. office for Iris joining Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Olathe, Kansas, Phoenix, San Francisco, and Washington DC. Iris also has offices in Europe, India and China.

"Our new client services office is in downtown Nashville's Fifth Third Center," said Damon Goduto, Iris Co-Founder and Vice-President of Sales (404-719-5111). "We are neighbors to many prominent law firms and corporations, bringing our discovery team closer to our current and future customer base."

"Our new office in Nashville cements our company's commitment to our clients in the Nashville area. We have experienced tremendous growth in this market and are excited to offer increased local service to firms with growing amounts of complex litigation," said the president of Iris, Major Baisden. "Real, comprehensive consultative services and support are requirements of electronic discovery. This office makes it easier for our clients to centralize all aspects of discovery so they can focus on delivering higher value to their clients."
