

Thank you for your daily support.

The fourth issue of our monthly newsletter is about our brand new service called, "NICE MONO". We just started handling a cool and beautiful Japanese traditional handcraft, Suzu (the Japanese Bells). The service is accompanied by the web-catalogue named "NICE MONO". Please come visit the web-page to check out the remarkable collections of Japanese traditional bells.

【about NICE MONO】

What image comes to your mind when thinking of a "bell"? You will probably imagine a traditional metallic object that comes with inverted cup shape in variety of sizes and ringing sounds. The bell we make and use in daily life here in Japanese is a bit different. They are small yet beautiful, and the sound is nothing but an ear candy. When being carried by children, they also function as protection. We started NICE-MONO with a hope to provide people of all over the world with this Japanese traditional handcraft that attracts everyone by the beautiful look, warm sound, and function of ornaments and protection for the price that is reachable for the people living overseas. Please once take it in your hand and enjoy the beauty of it.

【about Japanese Bells】

Since ancient times, Japanese have used bells to purify their minds and purge evil spirits with the sound. The history of bells in Japan is really long. The oldest bells were found from the stratum of 3000 years ago.

At NICE-MONO, we accept large purchase orders for those who consider them.

Not only traders, but also individual customers and people especially from educational fields are welcome. In Japan, bells are used as an amulet for greater purification. How about giving them to kids for protection? We will offer you our best price for this purposes.

Considering an order of large quantity.

The selling price for large orders depends on the actual quantities. Please make an inquiry for this. We will inform you of the price estimation and delivery date. Please contact us directly for the actual discount price. We will offer you with our best prices that is much more reasonable than the ones listed in the webpage.
