

ALLERGY SHOTS

GET IN GEAR

Tote safety and style along to school with these inventive allergy and asthma products. —Alisa Fleming

Social Sacks

Skip the paper and plastic while inspiring conscious conversations with #nutfree Reusable Bags. The hashtag helper comes in five eye-catching colors, is made of machine-washable ripstop material, has the capacity of up to three grocery bags, and folds into a flat pouch. $12 at www.nutfreewear.com.

Fashion Statement

Make no mistake of allergen needs with Sensitivitees. The adorable graphics clearly display food concerns to keep caregivers and classmates from forgetting. Available in several 100% cotton colors, with short or long sleeves and seamless features for added comfort. $13.59-19.99 at www.sensitivitees.com.

Stick it to Them

Get the message across with Kidecals Allergy Labels. The waterproof decals adhere to clothing, bottles, backpacks and lunchboxes, and are available in free-from designs or can be customized with the information you want. $21/36 labels (Everyday Set) at www.kidecals.com.

Charmed Chains

Prioritize personal care with a Links of Hope Medical ID Bracelet. Each beaded cuff is crafted by deaf students and artisans in developing countries who receive free jewelry-making training, tools, fairly-traded raw materials and livable wages to promote sustainability. $50-95 at www.etsy.com/shop/linksofhope.

Breathe Easy

Attach a Kozy Epi Puffer Pouch to your child's backpack and send her off safely with an asthma inhaler in reach. The compact, water-repellent carriers fasten with a buckle or clip and are available in fun designs for functional visibility. $20 at www.kozyepi.com.

Undercover Carrier

The CarryNine Premium Leather Wallet offers a stylish solution for food-allergic teens and adults. Handmade with traditional saddle stitching, each sleek case holds an Auvi-Q auto-injector, three credit cards and bills, but is slim enough for a back pocket. $75 at www.carrynine.com. See also the sleek EpiPen skins, $15.
