

The Arcade-Style Fun of Andrio's World by Joerg Jahnke

Enabled for Intel® Atom™ Tablets for Android*

Game developer Joerg Jahnke has collaborated with Intel® to enable its popular Andrio's World for Intel® Atom™ tablets for Android*. The colorful, challenging game can now be easily accessed by users of the device.

Andrio's World is a jump and run gaming app that takes the best of classic arcade-style games and transforms that feeling into the modern era. Reminiscent of past favorites such as Super Mario Brothers, Giana Sisters, and Jumpman, players will compete in 45 levels of increasing difficulty, plus have the opportunity to navigate through thousands of randomly generated levels. Players hop over monsters, defeat enemies, gather power-ups, and collect coins while trying to complete as many levels as possible, while moving successfully toward the end goal. With the use of global leaderboards, the competition is endless. With the "Edit Settings" option, players can customize their journey. Andrio's World is now MOGA-enhanced and also runs on the NVIDIA Shield. Global leaderboards are available, where high scores can be compared to those of other players, allowing a great, friendly competition from anywhere, as well as the motivation to always increase ability.

A New Gaming Audience Can Now Access Andrio's World with Intel Atom Tablets for Android*
