The Certified Occupational Safety Specialist program is an intense, curriculum-based certificate for safety practitioners. COSS® students learn the essentials needed to create and maintain a culture of safety in the workplace. This professionally designed program is for safety practitioners—the people best suited to bring about the changes necessary for a safe environment. That combination, along with the OSHA Outreach 10-Hour cards of completion in General Industry and Construction, make the COSS® program truly unique and value-added.

The versatility of the COSS® program is wide-ranging. All types of people have found that becoming a Certified Occupational Safety Specialist has accelerated their company and their career. From the seasoned safety professional needing certification maintenance, to the first-line supervisor who was just promoted into the safety department, COSS® has something for everyone. Managers, craftsmen, students, human resource professionals, and administrators alike find the COSS® program challenging and rewarding.

COSS® is one of eighteen programs certified by the American Petroleum Institute, the world's largest trade association for the petroleum industry. The standards by which API certifies a training program are of the most stringent in the industry. The strength of this accreditation is one of the reasons COSS® is the only program of its kind taught at the university level.

COSS® combines dynamic lectures from authorized OSHA Outreach instructors, hands-on workshops, guest speakers from various industries and regulatory agencies, student presentations, daily readings and quizzes, practical reviews, a comprehensive exam, and compliance moment exercises.

The COSS® curriculum is designed to provide the essentials that every safety practitioner needs, and the tools to achieve the desired safety results upon returning to work on Monday morning.

"Since I became a COSS...our company has lowered its injury rate by 67%."

- Les Lejeune, COSS, Entergy
