

Communispond™ Announces Newly Revamped Executive Presentation Skills™ Course

Communispond takes their flagship presentation course and makes it easier for business professionals to become better communicators by incorporating more interactive material

EAST HAMPTON, NY | January 20, 2015 – Communispond, the leader in communication skills training since 1969, continues to evolve their award-winning curriculum, Executive Presentation Skills. This program gives participants the skills and confidence to organize and deliver effective presentations to small and large groups.

Improvements to Executive Presentation Skills have been made across three main areas: storyboarding, engagement, and ease of content application. According to Communispond's Chief Executive Officer, Bill Rosenthal, "People are hungry for this course—they keep coming back! So, we continue to raise the bar and we couldn't be more proud of the improvements made to Executive Presentation Skills. We've taken an industry-leading course and made it even better. With the enhancements made to this course, we're very excited to see what 2015 will bring."

About Communispond

Since 1969, Communispond has helped more than 700,000 professionals worldwide improve their communication skills for sales, management, organizational effectiveness, and media appearances. Every Communispond program is designed to teach proven, practical skills that can be used immediately. For more information, please visit www.communispond.com and connect with Communispond on LinkedIn and Twitter (@communispond).

Communispond Contact:

Hayley Reed

+1-585-441-9890

hreed@communispond.com