Plattsburgh, NY– 3/24/2015 – The Adirondack Coast stretches across the western shores of Lake Champlain shouldered by New York’s Adirondack Mountains and the Green Mountains of Vermont. Throughout the region campgrounds, parks and beaches offer visitors plenty of opportunity for rest and recreation.

Camping

Camping on the Adirondack Coast offers a chance to get back to nature without leaving civilization too far behind. Enjoy the soothing sounds of an evening in the woods – the crackle of a campfire the thrilling call of a loon – and rejuvenate your senses. The area offers everything from state-owned and operated, to private campgrounds with family friendly amenities.

Island Camping

Sail along the beautiful shoreline and fall asleep to the quiet lap of waves on Valcour Island, which provides secluded and peaceful island campsites. Peru Dock is a state boat launch located on State Route 9 just 1.5 miles north of Valcour.

Parks & Beaches

The Adirondack Coast is renowned for its pristine beaches stretching along the shores of Lake Champlain or tucked away at the edge of a quiet river or mountain lake. Rent a stand-up-paddleboard, explore nature trails, dig in to a game of beach volleyball or kick back on one of the largest fresh water beaches in the United States and enjoy the incredible views – compliments of the Adirondack Mountains.
