LynnCo Selected by CIO Review as Top 20 Most Promising for Two Years and Running

CIO Review has recognized LynnCo as one of America's most promising supply chain solution providers.

Tulsa, OK: LynnCo Supply Chain Solutions, a leading supply chain company headquartered in Tulsa, Oklahoma, has been recognized as one of the 2015 top 20 most promising supply chain solution providers by CIO Review, a publication focused on enterprise technology solutions capable of redefining an organization's future business goals. This is the second year in a row that LynnCo has gained a top 20 recognition by CIO Review.

CIO Review serves as a neutral source of information for decision makers seeking to identify "the best" in a variety of areas important to technology-driven businesses. To help CTOs, CIOs, and CEOs find the right supply chain solutions, the editorial research team at CIO Review analyzed more than 300 companies that own innovative technologies and methodologies.

CIO Review chose LynnCo due to its capability to fulfill the needs of cost-effective and flexible solutions that add value to the complex supply chain landscape and support strategy alignment powered by technology. Since its founding, LynnCo has committed to implementing evolutionary programs using groundbreaking best practices that result in optimal supply chains.

President Wendy Buxton says, "Each year, LynnCo invests in pioneering service, technology, and intellectual enhancements that allow us to stay ahead of our competition and continually compound value with our clients. LynnCo is honored to be recognized by CIO Review for our continued innovative impact on the logistics industry and awarding us inclusion in the Top 20 list of most promising supply chain solution providers again this year."
