

MSI Global Talent Management Expands into Middle East Market

Hampton NH August 19, 2015 – MSI Global Talent Management will host a strategic HR workshop in Dubai on 27 October 2015 for key HR decision makers in the Middle East.

The workshop will provide cutting edge solutions for maximising the impact and strategic value of HR leaders to their organisations in the Middle East today. Current HR and talent management hot topics will be addressed by an expert panel of senior practitioners from the region including Brad Boyson, SHRM, Regional Director; Murtaza Khan, Fragomen, Partner & Practice Leader; Mohammad Laghari, ALJ International, Chief HC Officer; Javier Sanchez, MetLife, VP Talent Management; and Atul Varma, Grant Thornton, Director Corporate and Outsourcing. In addition, Arda Atalay, LinkedIn Head of UAE will be speaking on the subject of connectivity and talent mobility.

Workshop session topics and takeaways will include the following:

- Integrating business objectives and HR strategy
- Explaining the value of your function to your top leadership
- Strategies for attracting, retaining, and developing key talent in the Middle East
- Managing the challenges of nationalisation programmes
- Developing a global mindset with regard to identifying and building the skills and competencies needed to achieve global success
- Moving HR policies and practices from the regional to the international stage
- Measuring and proving the return on investment

“The Middle East is a very important market, and we are pleased to be expanding into the region with this select event, which will build on MSI's successful HR workshops in Europe and the U.S.," said John Brice, president of MSI Global Talent Management. "In addition, we will be inviting workshop participants to join the Middle East Talent Forum, which MSI is establishing as an exclusive ongoing regional forum, to share best practice and news of the latest initiatives in the fields of talent management and talent mobility."
