

Atmosera Expands Offerings with Managed Database Services

Clients get tailored solutions for outsourcing database administration and advanced data management architecture

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

News Summary

PORTLAND, Ore. - - September 24, 2015 - - Atmosera, the trusted, transparent, and secure global hybrid managed solution partner, today announced the availability of managed database services also known as “DBA as a Service”. Atmosera is addressing the growing need for companies to ensure their database systems have been properly designed, implemented, and tuned. Many companies cannot afford dedicated in-house database resources to perform ongoing maintenance and stay abreast of technology advancements. Atmosera experts are available 24x7x365 to perform any task, from basic day-to-day maintenance to complex architecture design. Atmosera offers flexible options to meet any client need, from extending their existing team to completely outsourcing database administration. Clients benefit from a solution that covers every aspect of database management, ensuring worry free operation and ongoing innovation.

The initial focus delivers managed database services for Microsoft SQL Server with rapid expansion to support other relational, object, and NoSQL databases as well as object caches. Atmosera can combine managed database services with advanced storage solutions using the latest technology, including All Flash Arrays and PCIe Flash. This ensures clients get solutions which take into consideration both the data management and storage layers for optimal performance. Clients can also rely on Atmosera to architect a solution which offers both backup and redundancy in the event of outages and system failures. Atmosera has successfully been delivering managed database services to several clients, including Navos Mental Health Solutions in Seattle, for the last few years and is now extending it to its entire client base.
