The Dog with No Name!

Fiction

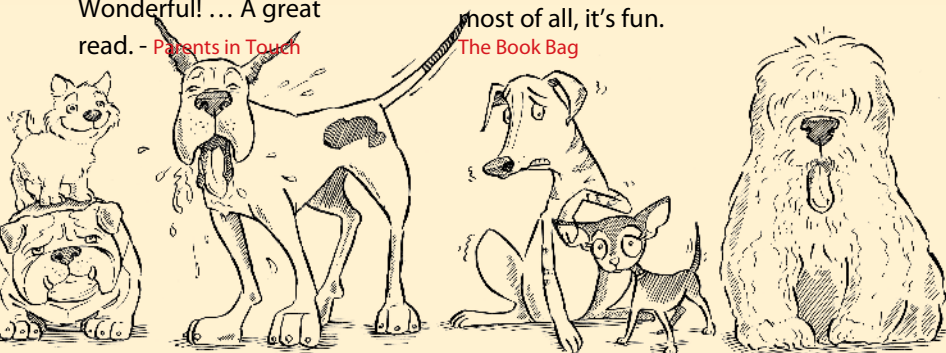

Neil Griffiths Illustrated by Janette Louden
When Ella and Harry finally persuaded (well, nagged endlessly!) their parents to let them have a dog, they could never have imagined what a hole they had all dug for themselves! The realities of dog ownership are quickly brought to life when, after a visit to the Dog Rescue Centre, they end up taking 'the dog with no name' home. Poo duties have to be adhered to, along with obedience training, and as for grooming their new pet, it's a task like no other. But the dog's passion for digging, and the discovery of what appears to be a dinosaur bone, leads to more than just fame! Neil Griffiths has written many children's picture books, but this is his first junior novel. His subtle humor and eye for observation masterfully aid his description of events in this tale of a wayward dog looking for a family to love him!
