Miami University's Corwin M. Nixon Aquatic Center Upgrades Video Display with Colorado Time Systems

Loveland, CO—September 20, 2016— Colorado Time Systems (CTS), a PlayCore company, is pleased to announce the completed installation of a brand new 8mm SMD video display in the Corwin M. Nixon Aquatic Center at Miami University in Oxford, OH.

The video display is one of the largest in the nation's collegiate aquatic centers, measuring an impressive 47.9 ft wide x 12.8 ft high (14.6m x 3.9m)

"We installed our old Colorado Time Systems' video display back in 2002," said John Mihevic, Aquatic Director. "Although the display still ran, it was time for us to upgrade to newer technology. We have worked with CTS for years and their staff has always been extremely responsive and helped us through any issues that we have had. It was the obvious choice to stay with them to complete this upgrade."

When asked what he liked best about the new board, John replied "What's not to love? It's big, bright, it pops, and there are so many incredible things that we can do now. As an example, we now have the ability to display complete information for two pool racing, as well as diving and swimming simultaneously."

"Colorado Time Systems values our relationship with Miami University and their staff," said Rick Connell, Vice President and General Manager. "It is really excited to see the installation complete at this impressive facility."
