The Divorce School Fall Semester Is Now Open: Unlimited Access to All Videos and Podcasts

Open 24/7 until December 15, The Divorce School offers unlimited access to videos and podcasts featuring some of the top divorce professionals in North America, who offer divorce-related advice.

TORONTO, ON (Oct. 5, 2016) — The Divorce School is back for another semester with brand-new sessions and faculty members, including family lawyers and mediators, financial professionals, and even a former judge.

Some of the new topics covered in this semester:

- Benefits of mediation for divorces involving contentious child custody and financial issues
- Ins and outs of property and asset division
- Importance of having a financial expert on your divorce team
- Common financial-related questions couples ask during a divorce
- Issues facing divorcing military service-members and their families
- Child custody issues in Florida
- The unique issues same-sex couples face in divorce
- The advantages of collaborative law
- Why some people behave badly during divorce – and how to have a healthier divorce
- The latest research on the impact of divorce on children.

Sessions from the spring semester will be available during this semester as well.

Individuals who are considering, currently in the process of, or recovering from divorce will benefit from the advice and tips offered by faculty members.

To become a member of The Divorce School and take advantage of all the interesting and informative sessions, simply register here and then log in. Sessions are available at no cost to members 24/7. Simply grab your laptop, tablet, or smartphone and watch/listen and learn.

New sessions will be added to the curriculum on October 15.
